Ema's work continuously follows themes of the uncanny, the domestic, the [female] body, domestic ritual, anti-form and of course, the home. These themes are translated through a multitude of varying mediums in her work to create a collection of pieces that can be displayed as an installation or as stand-alone works.

Ema takes inspiration from her childhood memories and the emotions harboured about places relating to these formative times. The work created in her current collection 'The Body Is The Home' aims to encapsulate the feelings harboured about 'home' into the physical world, to create a space [,a home] that has been longed for but never found.
